

June 2014

Citadel Plastics is pleased to announce the launch of our new branding campaign.

Citadel was formed in 2007 and through a series of acquisitions we've combined an unparalleled breadth of employee knowledge, compounding technology, and operational agility to expand the boundaries of polymer materials while creating unique solutions for our current and future customers. Our new branding effort is designed to educate industry professionals, like you, of our latest capabilities and global reach.

In addition, we are better educating our teams to be more proficient in helping you choose the best material selections possible in order for you to make, what it is that you make, even better.

Along with our new branding we will continue to invest in the tools and resources that make your commitment to us worthwhile. Please take the time to visit our new website and reach out to our commercial, service and distribution team members to help you understand the new Citadel Plastics.

We are committed to Expanding your Possibilities.

Respectfully,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Keith W. Dunlap". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

Keith W. Dunlap
Vice President, Sales and Marketing
Citadel Plastics